How we use your information

The University of Dundee may, in certain circumstances, process data further to the requirements of the Equality Act, in pursuit of measures to ensure equality of opportunity or treatment, or when undertaking processes concerning diversity at senior levels of the University, including racial and ethnic diversity. Detail on the specific circumstances where this information is processed will normally be provided at the time of data collection or use.

The data processed will normally be information concerning ‘protected characteristics’ per the Equality Act 2010. Much of this information is ‘special category’ personal data per the General Data Protection Regulation.

Data controller

The data controller for this information is the University of Dundee.

Lawful processing

Where the data required in this area is ‘personal data’ rather than ‘special category’ personal data, the University will normally process such data for compliance with a legal obligation or for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of the University’s official authority.

Where special categories of personal data are processed in this area, it is normally for the purpose of carrying out obligations in the field of employment and social security and social protection law, or for reasons of substantial public interest further to the provisions of Schedule 1, Part 2 of the Data Protection Act 2018.

Your rights

The University respects your rights and preferences in relation to your data. If you wish to update, access, erase, limit or complain about the use of your information, please let us know by emailing dataprotection@dundee.ac.uk. Once your information has been passed to other universities you should engage with them directly concerning your information. You may also wish to contact the Information Commissioner’s Office.
